This department has entered the second stage of service to Tribune readers. Primarily it was intended merely to separate the sheep of advertising from the goats-and hang a bell on the goats. But now it goes beyond mere identification. It embraces a human nature study of both sheep and goats. You are invited to assist. For every letter printed in this department describing experiences-pleasant or unpleasant-with advertisers of merchandise, excepting only patent medicines, The Tribune will send $2.00, payable in any merchandise of any Tribune advertiser. For the most important letter each month a special prize of $50.00, payable similarly, will be awarded. Name printed or withheld-as you prefer, but must be signed or we will not know where to send the prize order. Address: The Ad-Visor, The

Should you ever write another article in your Ad-Visor column on the testimonial "fake," here is some material for you. The "ad" appeared in our weekly paper, the name and date of which I am including Now, the "ad" sounds very good, but the joke of it is that Mr. Mayer never took a Doan's Kidney Pill in his life; never even saw one except once, when a sample package was thrown into his shop, and this he immediately threw away. Moreover, Mr. Mayer has never in his life had the least sign of any kidney trouble, nor any of the symp toms enumerated in the "testimonial." MARVIN Z. WESTERVELT.

Doan's Kidney Pills used to furnish edification for the ungodly by publishing testimonials from "cured" people who promptly died, prefer ably of kidney diseases which these pills purport to cure. In this case it were perhaps better for Doan's if Mr. Mayer had died, instead of being very much alive, quite resentful, and willing in support the statements made by Dr. Westervelt under oath if need be. The cause of Mr. Mayer's resentment is this paragraph published in "The Litchfield Enquirer

Joseph Mayer, barber, Spencer St., Litchfield, says: "For some time I suffered from backache and pains through my sides. The kidney secretions were unnatural and caused me no end of annoyance. I finally used Doan's Kidney Pills and they gave me great relief, strengthening my kidneys and removing the pains in my back. I recommend Doan's Kidney Pills as a medicine that lives up to the claims made for it."

Further Mr. Mayer states to The Tribune that he never gave the Doan people any right to use his name. Mr. Mayer, by the way, has sound ideas as to the best method of disposal of nostrums.

The other day I bought a hat from Lambert's Nassau Street store and was surprised to find the enclosed guarantee on the bag which it came in. Although I have made numerous purchases from Lambert's, I have never before noticed their guarantee. Is it something new? It seems to me to be as good a guarantee as any one could desire. What do you think of it?

G. HERBERT ATKIN. "Should anything you purchase here prove unsatisfactory," runs the Lambert slip, "please return it for exchange, or, if preferable, your money will be refunded."

I was much interested to read in your column the letter of Eric Alliot and your comment thereon relative to the settlement of claims by the Adams Express Company. Being engaged in transportation work, my ideas may seem one-sided, but they are based on a knowledge of the facts, at any rate. I do not seek to excuse the Adams Company or any other railroad or express company for dilatory methods in the settlement of claims. Claims, like any other business, should be handled promptly, and the satisfaction afforded patrons by a prompt adjustment is always productive of prevenue.

so many restrictions on transportation companies in order to avoid the payment of rebates that no damage claim is permitted to be settled unless it is bons fide beyond all question. This accounts for the requests for affidavits, copies of invoice and other supporting documents which to most patrons seem unnecessary and annoying. Doubtless they are sometimes unnecessary, but in most cases the transportation company is only seeking to have proof of the validity of making the payment in case their doing so is questioned at a later time.

A great deal of delay which is unnecessary is taken up in investigations between several different carriers who may have shared in the earnings. This delay no carrier has yet found a way to circumvent, although it would seem to be a simple enough matter. In part the cause of this delay is due to inefficient help, and the carriers will tell you that they can't afford to hire higher class men. Millions of dollars are paid in loss and damage claims every year, and many fraudulent claims are made. If the transportation companies did not substantiate each claim before payment, many more millions would go out in this way from which there is no return. A railroad is not permitted to settle claims over the counter; if your seat in the car was ancomfortable you can't get a cent of your fare back, so have patience, pray, and your claim will be paid. No carrier, to the writer's knowledge, wilfully tries to avoid payment by disgusting the claimant with poor service in settling his claim, but that is the effect many times, more's the pity.

Speaking of guarantees which you are quite frequently would you want anything more complete than the enclosed? As you can see, this is a chewing gum container, from a slot machine in the Hudson Tunnels. Of course, if this one-cent package of gum contained only one piece the guarantee assures me that if I wish to use the time, writing material, mental energy and a two-cent stamp to write the manufacturers I will in the course of a few days (maybe) receive the other piece of sum.

A week ago I purchased a pair of shoes at Emerson's, 13s1 Broadway, and wore them from the date of purchase until this morning. sewed, crumpled at that particular part, causing the edge of the sole to assume an uneven appearance.

The reputation I have for wearing out shoes in half the length of time that would appear reasonable checked the motive that prompted me to return them for Emerson's inspection. Still, the thought of such an unenviable reputation was celipsed by another thought, to wit: "Probably Emerson's advertisement appears in The Tribune." The same thought also inspired a degree of confidence. I felt assured that should I find their advertisement in its columns, I could rely upon an equitable ustment without anticipating an argument with some omniscient

However, a careful search of The Tribune's columns failed to disclose any advertisement from Emerson. My confidence waned. Still, I decided to return the shoes, if for no other reason than to compare the treatment I would receive at their hands with that I might have expected had I found their advertisement in your paper.

On entering Emerson's store I removed my shoe and gave it to one of the cierks, at the same time calling his attention to its condition, and informing him that the date of purchase was a week ago.

Instead of his appearing omniscient, as I had anticipated, he referred the matter to the manager. That gentleman, without saying a word, fitted me with another pair of shees. There seemed to be nothing in which he took greater delight than that of pleasing a customer, and as far as I am concerned he succeeded admirably.

As I left the store the predominant thought in my mind was not so much the degree of satisfaction I received, nor the courtesy I was extended, but rather an increased disappointment in not being able to attribute such an exceptional standard of consideration for customers to the efforts of the newspaper that has done so much toward the prometion of henest advertising and equitable treatment in all business trans-

As has been repeatedly set forth in this department, The Ad-Visor did not invent trade honesty and fairness. These qualities existed before it ever came into the field of merchandising. Otherwise its campaign could never have made such headway as it has made. One purpose of this campaign is to teach the mercantile world that fair treatment of this campaign is to teach the mercantile world that fair treatment of this campaign is profitable as well as honorable. The Emerson store evidently needs no lessons in that department.
